THE HOME OF SANTA CLAUS.

On Saturday morning Mr. Thrum's Fort Street Store was re-opened as advertised to display the Christmas novelties which Mr. Thrum had ordered on his recent visit to the Coast.

The first thing noticeable was a beautifully decorated sign painted by Mr. G. C. Stratemeyer, giving a portrait of our old friend Santa Claus as a Russian peasant, and conveying the information that this was the head-quarters of Santa Claus.

The maula window was filled with a tastefully arranged sample of the stock inside—gaily-decorated books, cards, boxes, &c., distributed in joyous profusion waked the appetite of the passer-by. The makai window was devoted to art—statues, frames, pictures filled the small space and seemed to overflow in all directions. Central in this window was the beautiful colored picture Morning Glories.

On entering the shop appeared to have no place to plant the foot, everything seemed to be crowded with beautiful objets de vertu. Tables were loaded with a profusion of toys, books, statuary and bronzes. The first thing we noticed was the elegant display of work baskets and nicknacks in leather, plush, wood &c. in a show-case opposite the door. Our special fancy in this line was a neat olivewood glove and work-box, artistically curved and opening by a neat mechanical contrivance.

Then we passed on to the tables, stopping not longer than to cursorily glance over the piles of toys, dolls, some of which were in neat little boxes accompanied by a full wardrobe, velocipedes, paint boxes, tea and dinner sets, kaleidoscopes, stereoscopes and engravings. Finally we came to the object of our search—the books.

And we were well rewarded for our troubles for here were hundreds and hundreds of books in all styles of literature and varied methods of binding, books in cloth, book in boxes, books in libraries, in fact books every way you wanted them.

We have taken a few notes of what we saw in the book line as specially worthy the attention of our readers which we present in the rough form we noted them down: Children's libraries in ash cases, Cozy corner series, The Little Sunshine series, with many other boxes of books, will bring joy to the family they are taken into.

Two finely illustrated gift books for the drawing room table are, Washington and The Great Painters of Christendom. What marvels of binding, engraving and letter-press are produced in these days. Next we came across a beautiful case as a present for a devout friend. The Devout Classics. Then the Beatrice Birthday book designed last year by H. R. H. Princess Beatrice of England, which has been produced in a truly royal style from its binding in vellum cloth and gold to the artistic colored paintings, which adorn its contents.

Lucille, by Owen Meredith, is a truly gorgeous setting a splendid poem. Tree-calf binding, steel engraving and the cunningest little wood cuts scattered through the letter-press, make this a veritable edition de luxe.

Transparent photographs on glass next caught our attention. Then a beautiful gift book, Indian Summer, Autumn poems and sketches. Science was represented by an elaborate disquisition on the Horse in motion illustrated by Muybridge's photographs. Famous Parks and Gardens of the world shows us what Kapiolani Park may be in time. The Mediterranean Illustrated,

Oxford Bibles from Nelson & Sons, Teachers' editions, some of them with patent indexes which are just the thing to enable you to find any place you want at a moment's notice. All these and more are crowded into our memories.

Then we looked at the collection of Christmas cards which this year are marvels of art—of some of them we can say that they are fit to be the sole ornament of a room they are so divinely beautiful. Then the novelties in book binding were shown us, the Christmas stocking, Christmas bell, the Cross, each of which is stamped out in the shape of its name, and bears poetical extracts relative to the season. The purple and gold leaflets tied together with a knot of purple ribbon are samples of what aestheticism has done for books. Aldine Autograph Albums, photos of Ideal heads, devotional books in limp hand painted covers, lace patterns for borders of Christmas cards, all mix themselves up confusedly in our memory, but we must say Mr. Thrum has done a great deal for the education of the country, by bringing into it such a varied display of art and art treasures for distribution amongst us. We hope his enterprise will be amply repaid.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The schooners Jennie Walker and General Seigel will be hove down.

The Mokoli left yesterday morning for Koolau. She will return on Wednesday.

The Likelike yesterday brought 340 bags of sugar.

LOCAL AND GENERAL ITEMS.

Mr. A. G. Ellis sold 5 shares of Star Mills at $500 each on Saturday.

If you want to see a duck pond on the street, go to Queen street, makai of the Government Building.

It appears that there is no money in the Treasury. Nobody can get their bills paid.

A lot of new books have been received and placed in the Government Building Library.

GREEN scum is on a pool in Fort street, opposite the Library. Where are our street scrapers?

Why doesn't the Germania Market make any more bolognas? That's what the people say.

There are only about 30 soldiers left in the Hawaiian Army. The rest have quit soldiering and gone to work.

We hear that Mr. Lincoln is the successful tenderer for the new Oahu College building at $22,500.

THURSDAY is the attraction of all minds. Knots of young men stand at every corner and discuss the races.

The Fire Department ought to hurry up with getting those new engines. Friday showed they were needed.

Work has been pretty well stopped on the Palace. No money to pay wages and the Government are refused credit by builders.

Mr. Thrum has for sale a blotter, which will be appreciated by business men. In addition to the usual facilities it contains an alphabetical list of words and names likely to be mis-spelled. It is called "Dreka's blotter."

TREE-PLANTING is going on in the Makiki slopes. Several of the young trees are already appearing above ground. About 700 holes are dug every day, and in each several seeds are planted. They are short of seeds of Hawaiian forest trees, such as koa. The last laborers' cottage was finished on Saturday.

A snor door was left bolted so the employees thought on Friday night, but one of them was waked by a policeman, who told him the shop door was open. It had been bolted without seeing that the door was closed to. Nothing was missed, however.

There will be a post mortem held on a recent death, probably we hear the body is to be disinterred to-day.

We have from time to time in these columns urged upon the attention of the police numerous cases of cruelty to animals. Why couldn't a policeman be stationed on the wharves whose special duty would be to superintend the loading of drays. Just fancy one horse having to pull 1000 feet of redwood or Nor-west, whether the roads were muddy or dry.

One thing much needed here is an automatic electric circuit to give a fire alarm simultaneously at all the engine houses, police station, etc., the moment it is known at the Central Office. It would not only save much annoyance, but would, in the end, save much valuable property by giving the alarm almost instantaneously.

We hear that more than half the patients in the Leper Hospital are incurable. Why, then, doesn't the Board of Health recognize its responsibility in the matter, and have them shifted to Molokai, where they ought to be? While these lepers are left so near the town and others allowed to wander in the streets and live amongst their friends the Board is morally responsible for any further spread of the disease.

A few days ago a large limestone rock was being blasted at Emporia, Kansas, when a small cavity that had been completely enclosed was opened, in which was a little worm or larva, apparently bleached and lifeless. It is now developing into a first-class worm or butterfly, and is doing some lively wiggling. The rock in which the insect was found is from a Chase County quarry, and the ledge was five feet in thickness and about twenty feet below the surface of the ground. The insect is about one-half an inch long and ribbed across the back, was pure white when first found, but is now assuming a brownish color, and there can be no doubt that the enclosure was complete, and that this is one of the most remarkable cases of suspended animation on record.

In a gambling saloon—One of the bystanders exclaims: "I take back one louis." The banker replies severely: "Pardon, monsieur, but you have not deposited anything." "Oh, then I'll take back what I said."—Le Figaro.
